[Overview of the New Office Building]

- Size: 14 floors above ground/Two floors underground
- Height: Approximately 63 m; Total Floor Area: Approximately 26,338 m²
- Construction: Reinforced concrete, steel structure
- Environmental Performance: CASBEE building certification rank S

The new Tokyo Head Office building has consolidated the Group's offices which had been dispersed throughout a number of buildings, with a total of approximately 1,500 employees and 16 NAGASE Group companies, including Nagase & Co., working together in one building. With the goal of creating new value through One NAGASE, and the four workplace concepts of solidarity, co-creation, strong individualism, and an exciting and vibrant environment, we will work to create an environment in which every employee can enjoy working with high productivity.

As a space to interact with local residents, NAGASE KOBUNACHO HIROBA has opened on the first floor, with a café as well as games and other content exhibits teaching about the NAGASE Group. A Local History and Culture Exhibition Corner has been established, where the Oh-mikoshi portable shrine owned by the Nihonbashi-Kobunacho Community Association will be permanently displayed (starting from early November). The grounds also include public open spaces with paths featuring ample greenery, as well as environmentally-friendly exterior and interior design incorporating technology and facility systems contributing to reduced energy and resource usage. The building received rank S CASBEE building certification, the highest rank.
